CAPTAIN WATTAGE

The National Theatre for Children will be on campus October 27th to present Captain Wattage. Captain Wattage is a high-energy school assembly performance that captures students' attention while teaching them about energy efficiency and electrical safety. Through a blend of humor, action and lively audience interaction, two professional actor-educators transform into a variety of unforgettable characters, leading students through an exciting adventure where they'll join forces with our lovable hero to stop a mischievous villain who's wasting precious energy. The show is both fun and educational, with plenty of humor to keep students engaged while reinforcing key concepts. Grades K-6th are invited to the performance in the sanctuary.
